

LOVE AND LIFE

Under the sun I will seek
The broken enigma of the dream,
The blue blood
And the equivocal silence of the wind

I crowned you queen
The field was so big!
I broke a hundred walls
With the vitreous glow
Of my garnet lips.

Stone upon stone,
Will come the discreet charm
Of the afternoon
And my deep gaze
Will cultivate for you
A vast orchard
Of an embellished empress.

Humans in gesture,
Breathless gods,
Kisses and laments,
We will engrave our profile
In the serene restlessness of the night.

Present.
Wake up the clocks!
Beyond, the horizon.
