

WE WILL TAKE BERLIN

The world is in turmoil, my friends. We summon you to share with you a momentous piece of information. As you all know, we have lived in this building for hundreds of years peacefully till today. Why do I say till today, you may ask? You see, a problem has arisen and our seniority rights are not being respected. Apparently, the Councilwoman of Finance is asking for her office to be sterilized and refuses to enter it unless such action is taken and, to make matters worse, other members of the corporation have joined her cause. The mayor, after an urgent meeting, has just drafted an edict in which he describes our stay as “non grata” and notifies the neighborhood of the implementation of immediate actions to achieve our eradication. We are at war. Apparently, they still haven't heard that our comrades took Paris a few days ago.

Collection of short stories: “Maybe or perhaps” (2006-)